Sometime this past October, our world's seven billionth baby was born. Unfortunately, despite our efforts, the world into which this child was welcomed is not yet the world to which we aspire.

Almost 1.5 billion people in our world live in extreme poverty (that is, on less than $1.25/day). Two and half billion people lack access to adequate sanitation and almost a billion do not have access to clean water.

The statistics are staggering. The challenge before us is almost paralyzing, with no end in sight (at the current rate, we'll hit a global population of 8 billion by 2023).

But we know that despair is not an option. Apathy is not an option. Indifference is not an option.

We at KAVOD, with your help, will continue to respond to these challenges with love, compassion, and wisdom. In times of darkness and despair, we will continue to endeavor to be a light of goodness.

The Hebrew month of Kislev always comes at the darkest time of the year (at least for those of us in the Northern Hemisphere). Although the name is actually of Babylonian origin, we can read it in Hebrew as a compound-noun: kis ("pocket") – lev ("heart"). The lesson of this dark month is to respond by opening our pockets and our hearts to those in need.

And so, once again, we ask you to respond with generosity and love so that, together, we can make our world a better place.

Please join us in our work by returning the enclosed envelope today with a check made out to KAVOD.

Online donations can be made at www.KAVOD.org, at www.justgive.org, or through Facebook Causes.

Our Ongoing Efforts to Be More Efficient

Both to conserve our planet's resources and to save on postage, we now only send ONE KAVOD mailing each year—this annual report. Since you will not receive a year-end letter, please let this serve as your reminder to give generously to KAVOD. We need your help, now more than ever.

Please know that KAVOD board members continue to cover all overhead expenses so that every dollar you contribute goes directly to the organizations we support.

To further reduce postage costs, all "repeat donations" to KAVOD (please keep them coming) are acknowledged by postcard rather than by letter. First-time contributors

Todah Rabbah: Words of Thanks

We are grateful to everyone who makes our work possible. We thank Mike Abramson, our pro bono accountant. We thank Rabbis Robert Davis and Jay Moses for guiding us in our allocations process. Most of all, we thank Judy Zweiback and Rosie Zweiback for their daily efforts to make sure that the work of KAVOD continues. They donate hundreds of hours each year to KAVOD recording, depositing, and lovingly acknowledging each and every gift. They carry on the work that was

When you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not reap all the way to the corner of your field, or gather the gleanings of your harvest. You shall not pick your vineyard bare, or gather the fallen fruit of your vineyard; you shall leave them for the poor and the stranger; I the Eternal am your God. You shall not steal; you shall not deal deceitfully or falsely with one another.

Leviticus 19:9-11

We hope you will enjoy reading about the projects and programs your gifts have supported over the past fiscal year (2010). Many will be familiar, as we strive, especially in these challenging economic times, to continue our commitments to groups we have supported in the past. Please note that some donations to specific KAVOD beneficiaries are donor-directed.

Ultimately, it's up to each one of us to decide how to respond to the darkness.

We hope you will join us in hope, in love, and in compassion. Together we can bring warmth, kindness, and dignity to a great many people in need.

TZEDAKAH PROJECTS

1. American Jewish World Service.....$2,500

American Jewish World Service, a co-founder of the Save Darfur Coalition, continues to work tirelessly to put an end to the genocide in Darfur.

Our donation supported the Sudan Relief and Advocacy Fund which supports communities displaced by the conflict who are living along the border between Sudan and Chad. AJWS programs aim to prevent sexual violence against women, improve access to clean drinking water, create educational opportunities, and support community-led initiatives to build local capacity.

2. Beit Frankforter: Jerusalem Center for the Aged.....$4,000

Inspired by the model of Myriam Mendilow, z"l, the people of Beit Frankforter are committed to preserving the essential KAVOD of their community of elders in Jerusalem. Sima Zini and her staff have created a community center that uplifts and honors seniors who enjoy regular care not only from dentists and ophthalmologists, but also from hairdressers, reflexologists, manicurists (including Isa, Ariela, and Naomi Zweiback), and yoga instructors. Our funds this year once again helped support the "Sandwich for Every Child" program. Last year the elders of Beit Frankforter prepared approximately 125,000 sandwiches for local school children whose families are experiencing economic hardships.

3. Big Brothers Big Sisters of Israel.....$1,000

Many children grow up in Israel today in single-parent homes. An ongoing one-on-one relationship with a caring, responsible adult can help children deal better with loneliness and receive the stability, guidance and modeling necessary for their healthy development. Big Brothers Big Sisters of Israel recruits and supports mentors who commit to meeting weekly with a child from an isolated single-parent home over an extended period of time. Volunteers are provided with ongoing professional support and training.

KAVOD partnered with the Good People Fund (see #7 below) to purchase a gas barbeque grill and provide monthly barbeques for kids and their Big Brothers and Big Sisters. Libby Reichman, executive director, told us that the barbeques were “a real crowd-pleaser, with everyone eating, playing ping-pong and foosball, Pictionary, and in general having a great time.”

4. The Blue Card.....$2,500

For over seventy years, the Blue Card has distributed funds to Jewish Holocaust survivors who live in poverty. The Blue Card was established in 1934 to help Jews who were suffering economically because of Nazi oppression. Blue cards were distributed to American Jews who donated funds to support their brothers and sisters in Europe. With each donation, these American Jews received a small stamp of commemoration which they could place in their “Blue Card” to track their giving. Our gift was used to provide monthly rent subsidies for survivors in need.

5. Elijah’s Promise.....$2,500

Reverend Lisanne Finston runs this model community soup kitchen that not only serves meals, but also provides nourishment for life. Elijah’s Promise in New Brunswick, New Jersey fulfills the highest level of tzedakah, enabling people to become self-sufficient, so that they need tzedakah no longer. Guests at Elijah’s Promise are offered nutritious meals, health screening, counseling and referrals, job training, and more. Most exciting for us is “Promise Jobs,” the culinary school opened several years ago, which teaches the art of food preparation to some of the soup kitchen guests. Graduates of the program have been placed in restaurant jobs throughout New Jersey, including positions in some of the state’s finest restaurants. Our donation helped purchase equipment for the culinary training program. Anshe Emeth Memorial Temple in New Brunswick hires Elijah’s Promise to cook all of its kosher Shabbat dinners. Why not develop a similar program in your community?

7. Free Loan Societies:
Hebrew Free Loan Association of San Francisco.....$4,000
Israel Free Loan Association.....$5,000

Jews have been supporting one-another through interest-free loans

To follow the Most High is to know that nothing is of greater importance than the approach made towards one’s neighbor, the concern with the fate of the ‘widow and the orphan, the stranger and the poor person’, and that no approach made with empty hands can count as an approach... for thousands of years. Free loan societies were and continue to be particularly helpful to recent immigrants. Many of these newcomers, desperately in need of support, have difficulty qualifying for a bank loan. Free loan societies offer a helping hand to those in need. As loans are repaid, the money is “recycled” to help others rent an apartment or start a small business.

KAVOD is a big fan of this model and supports free loan associations in NYC, San Francisco and Israel. Recipients are often startled to discover that the loans are interest free. Whether it’s for college tuition, expenses related to the adoption of a child or emergency assistance for a family that has suffered through a fire or debilitating illness, free loan societies are there to lend hope and dignity to those in need.

8. The Good People Fund...$4,000

Here's how our friend and teacher, Naomi Eisenberger, describes the work of the Good People Fund: "Many people work quietly and diligently, often below the radar screen and with shoe-string budgets, to better our world in untold numbers of ways. It is to these people, small entities or individuals whose efforts don't benefit from glossy brochures or promotions, or help from adequate staff or large organizational structures, that we direct our attention. Their success is our mission—by making them and their work visible and viable to others who will provide needed funding through tzedakah that is given in a cost-effective and meaningful way. One might call those that do this work social entrepreneurs or tzadikim (the righteous ones). We choose to call them simply good people."

It's an honor for us to be able to partner with Naomi to support these good people—Naomi is certainly one of them!

9. Humans and Animals in Mutual Assistance (HAMA).....$4,000

Avshalom Beni helps people who are in physical or emotional pain to feel better and to be better. Using animal-assisted therapy, Avshalom and his team work with people who have experienced trauma, economic reversals, and other forms of extreme distress. Avshalom and his animal helpers make a tremendous difference in the lives of hundreds of clients including children with autism or ADD, children who have been abused, people suffering from post traumatic stress, and survivors of the horrors of the Shoah.

10. Israel National Therapeutic Riding Association – Mitzvah Horses (INTRA).....$1,500

Anita and Giora Shkedi continue to do their breathtaking work with INTRA, utilizing the tools of therapeutic horseback riding to achieve astonishing breakthroughs where other forms of physical therapy fail. Anita and Giora open up new worlds to people with a wide array of emotional and/or physical difficulties, including wounded soldiers and victims of terror. If you never have seen therapeutic horseback riding in person, by all means find a center near you. Even better, Anita would welcome your visit during your next trip to Israel. How else will you meet one of the world's acknowledged experts on the subject? The results are sublime, inspirational, and nothing short of miraculous. We helped sponsor the "adopt a rider" program, providing therapeutic riding sessions for people who otherwise would not be able to participate due to financial reasons.

11. Israel Religious Action Center (IRAC).....$1,500

IRAC is the public and legal advocacy arm of the Israel Movement for Progressive Judaism. The people at IRAC work to make the State of Israel more democratic and pluralistic. They continue to make progress—slow to be sure but progress nonetheless—in their efforts to move the government and society of the state of Israel ever closer to the realization of equality and harmony in the State of Israel between women and men, Jews and Arabs, gay and straight, secular, orthodox, and progressive.

IRAC is committed to promoting equality, social justice, and religious tolerance in Israel. Through its numerous court battles and advocacy efforts, IRAC has helped new immigrants cut through bureaucratic red tape, enabled progressive Jews to celebrate their faith more freely, and demanded just treatment for foreign workers in Israel.

The Jerusalem Rape Crisis Center in Memory of Linda Feldman provides support to survivors of sexual abuse. The JRCC also runs educational programs for Israeli high school students to raise awareness about abuse and harassment. 13. Jewish Life in the Former Soviet Union (WUPJ).....$1,000

After 70 years of oppression, Jews in the Former Soviet Union can once again celebrate their Judaism. The World Union for Progressive Judaism works hard to ensure that there are liberal options for these Jews. One of the best ways to make this happen is by training young people to become Jewish educators, communal leaders, and rabbis. At the Machon Institute in Moscow, a new generation of community leaders is being trained to serve throughout the Former Soviet Union. Our sponsorship helps a student pay for tuition, books and supplies, transportation, and room and board in Moscow while attending the Machon.

15. Maureen Kushner.....$3,500

Maureen Kushner channels her immense creativity into empowering children to share, explore, and understand their own extraordinary histories. She helps Ethiopian Jews create art that celebrates and documents their long, heroic journey, and helps Jewish and Arab children address their prejudices through art. The artwork on the KAVOD tribute cards comes from this beautiful project. Her "Peace through Humor" project has been displayed in over 180 cities in the U.S. and Canada and 14 European countries. We are proud to have worked with Maureen since our inception.

16. The North American Coalition of Ethiopian Jewry (NACOEJ).....$1,500

In 1981 twelve North American Jews went on a mission to Ethiopia that was to change their lives and those of Ethiopian Jews forever. Riding on mules, this small group made their way up the Semien Mountains in northwest Ethiopia to remote villages where Jews lived, isolated from the rest of the Jewish world for 2,000 years. The appalling poverty, illness, and hunger they saw there, coupled with a deep commitment to Jewish life, so moved the participants that they returned home wholly devoted to the rescue of this phenomenal Jewish community. Shortly thereafter, NACOEJ was born. This grassroots movement has four mandates: to help Ethiopian Jews survive in Ethiopia, to assist them in reaching Israel, to aid in their absorption in Israel, and to preserve their unique and ancient culture. Our donation helped provide after-school tutoring for kids from Ethiopia in Israel.

For many years now, Barbara Silverman has been helping soldiers in the Israel Defense Forces live a bit more comfortably. Her project, A Package from Home, delivers thousands of care packages each year to those who risk their lives in defense of the Jewish homeland. It's extraordinary what a pair of warm socks, a wool hat, long underwear, a few chocolate bars, and some toiletries can do to lift a soldier's spirits. Each package also includes a handwritten note from an American or Canadian religious school student. During the war in the summer of 2006, Barbara sent out tens of thousands of extra packages.

The Rabbanit Bracha Kapach, an Israel Prize winner, feeds the hungry, provides for impoverished brides, and makes sure economically disadvantaged youngsters get to experience the joy of summer camp. She distributes educational material for children, helps couples finance their marriage, supports old and lonely people with food, clothing and trips, and embraces all of those who seemed to have slipped through the existing "safety net."

20. Rabbis for Human Rights Yeshiva.....$1,000

Rabbis for Human Rights (RHR) is the rabbinic voice of conscience in Israel, struggling to fulfill the commandment to “love your neighbor as yourself.” They promote justice and freedom while campaigning against discrimination and inhumane conduct.

Five years ago, RHR launched one of its most ambitious projects: the creation of a Human Rights Yeshiva, a place for dedicated young people to come to learn about and then do the sacred work of Tikkun Olam. Twenty students participated each week in the inaugural year, exploring such topics as: the principle of equality and the value of human life in the Bible; different approaches to relationships with the “other;” responding to sexual violence; slavery; and our obligations to immigrant laborers. Students volunteer with existing projects and some have developed a new program to provide help for teen run-aways. Our donation provided a scholarship for a student at the Hebrew University training to become a teacher of Jewish studies.

support of the extended community. Shalva is their lifeline, providing developmentally disabled children with a loving environment that helps them reach their full potential and gives parents the ability to keep them at home—with the family.

Shalva founders Kalman and Malky Samuels dreamed of a state-of-the-art center for mentally and physically challenged children that would instill pride in those who came through its doors. This dream became a reality with the opening of the Shalva Children’s Center, which offers fantastic programs such as hydrotherapy, music, art, computer, psychodrama and pet therapy. 22. Volunteer Optometric Service to Humanity (VOSH).....$1,000

VOSH is an association of eye care professionals who travel to impoverished communities all over the world providing free eye care to those in need. They also serve the optometry needs of people in several homeless shelters. Our funds were used to provide eyeglasses for approximately thirty people connected with Hesed House, a Chicago area shelter.

VOSH has conducted missions to every major continent during its existence, as well as domestic missions at homeless shelters. VOSH operates with zero overhead because the doctors cover their own expenses and equipment is donated. Ronald Weingart’s recent letter to us is music to our ears: “No donated funds are used for administration or fund raising. We have no paid staff and we pay our own expenses when we go on missions. We strive to operate as close to 0% overhead as possible.”
